BLACK WOMEN MAKE HISTORY WITH GRADUATE CERTIFICATES

SUCCESSFUL WORLD FIRST RECORD SUPPORTING RUBY BRIDGES FOUNDATION

Jen Franks Ahaghotu is a US based CEO and graduate of Harvard University who believes in the power of Black women's educational achievements to change the world.

Gathering over 3,500 registered Black women participants, they made history on September 8, 2023 by posting their educational achievements on social media.

The successful world record attempt created more than 1.4 Million social impacts in 24 hours, and is still growing daily.

The title is the Official Extreme Excellence World Record™ for:

"The Most Photos of Black Women with a Graduation Certificate Uploaded in 24 Hours."

The project flooded social media, and marks the beginning of a series of ambitious projects amplifying the educational achievements of Black women around the globe.

September 8th is the birthday of civil rights activist Ruby Bridges who stepped into the history books in 1960; when at just 6 years old, she integrated William Frantz Elementary School in New Orleans, becoming an international icon.

This project is raising funds and awareness for the Ruby Bridges Foundation.

A documentary is in production, and the project culminates in an event in Washington DC during Black History Month, February 2024.

"It is my mission to see more Black women celebrated at the highest level in the global narrative. Being visible and celebrating our work is a huge first step. This is a joyous achievement for our community and there is so much more to come." Said Jen.

Jen is seeking sponsors to help fund the documentary, set to Premiere in 2024.
